

Dear FCC,

I am opposed to a small number of corporations owning and controlling the airwaves. There have been a number of consolidations over the years with fewer and fewer owners/controllers of air media. Regardless of market concerns, I believe that the First Amendment rights of the Constitution take precedence and a system fostering diverse viewpoints and expression are more important than any market concerns. We can not avoid a loss of freedom of speech if media monopolies controll the airwaves (and make unliimited amounts of money off of the public commons).

The airwaves belong to all Americans. That will functionally not be true if only a few corporations control them. I oppose any rule changes that allow further control of American airwaves by a small number of corporations.

Thank you,
Ted Braude
